

Twigs April Report – The Inca Trail

Not often does a tale of a holiday adventure hold one's attention throughout the entire account but Christine's recollections of her trip along the Inca Trail were as fascinating as they were scary!

The trip could not actually be described as a 'holiday' – it was more akin to going into commando training! However, there was a very good reason behind all the pain and effort as Christine not only successfully completed the four day 'trek' at amazingly high altitude (and has the certificate to prove it!) she also raised a significant amount of money for the charity 'The National Deaf Children's Society'.

Well done Christine on presenting such an interesting and informative evening. (We also enjoyed the themed nibbles and cakes too!)
